To the ordinary person the decision would appear farcical. The bettor was either entitled to $1,200 or to not a penny. No compromise was possible, and the fact that he was awarded $500 was almost convincing proof that he convinced the men who heard evidence in the case that he had bet $1,000 against $200 that a certain horse would finish as good as third, but that they did not want to give a decision against a fellow member.

(CLEVELAND, O., July 17.—Things looked considerably brighter for the New York Americans to-day. Harold Chase saw the fair sunlight through his left peeper and a surgeon announced that his left cheek bone was not fractured. By the effuigence of a full moon last night "Pat" Dougherty's finger nail was iaid at rest in the village churchyard, with proper ceremonies. Jim McGuire made a brief oration, He said in part: "A baseball player has a short life and a lot of trouble. He riseth in the morning gay as a bush leaguer, he lieth down at night minus a finger nail and his caricature is in the papers. Twenty years in fast company is but a hit and run. When the umpire says "Out:" another man steps in your shoes and the world forgets you. Wat'el!"

In spite of this sad affair, the men seemed to feel pretty good, and were eager for a third batle with the Clevel and giants. That game on Saturday shot life into the cripied ciub, and your shoes not that lots, of things may hopen ere straw hats fade away.

HERMIS may not be the horse of fine year—there are Artful and Sysonby to dismute that title with him—still that he is some racehorse and still has his foot with him no one can deny. It takes a pretty fair sort of a herse to pick up 132 pounds and gallop a mile and a furlong in 1.52. That is what Hermis did Saturday, and, if he goes on and his legs do not go back on the money was bet straight, and that as the horse finished second it was a los-ling bet.
